

Global Factory List: Primary Suppliers (06 January 2015)

Being committed to transparency and public disclosure, the adidas Group publishes its global factory list with the names and locations of our contract suppliers per country. The data presented in our disclosure comes from an industry leading website, the Fair Factories Clearinghouse (FFC).

The Primary Suppliers list names those factories where we hold a direct sourcing relationship. While we have stable business relationships with many of our major manufacturing partners that extend over many years, we do see a degree of factory turnover throughout each year. So the factory list always describes the current status of our active business relationships at the date mentioned above in brackets. Like any large database fed by several business entities, errors can creep in, through incorrect data entries, improper designations (active, deactivated, terminated, etc.) or tardy updates. To eliminate these errors, we strive to keep the disclosure of our Primary Suppliers as current as possible by updating the list twice a year. The adidas Group runs a data cleansing exercise, to cross-check the entries and their accuracy.

If a reader has a query on a specific supplier factory and wants to know whether it is currently making goods for the adidas Group, please feel free to write to us and we will confirm its status. We can be reached at sustainability@adidas-group.com.

+++ Please note that this list displays our primary suppliers. Primary suppliers have a direct contractual relationship with the adidas Group for the supply of products, whether for export or domestic market consumption. +++
